LONGER TERMS OF OFFICE.

A joint resolution has been introduced in the House of Representatives to amend the constitution so that the terms of Representatives shall be increased to four years, of Senators to eight years, and of President to eight years, the latter being ineligible to re-election. Mr. Treloar, Republican, who introduced the resolution, urges in support of its adoption that the commercial interests of the country demand a change. He thinks that the election of a House of Representatives every two years, of a President every four years and of Senators every six years deranges business, and that he is right, to some extent, there cannot be much doubt.

But is it going to help matters to make the proposed change? Do we want an administration elected by the money of trusts and monopolies and foreign gold kings to continue in power eight years, and a Congress chosen by the same influences to uphold that administration for four years? It is seldom that a President goes out of office with the political party which elected him in the ascendancy in the House of Representatives. Harrison went into office with a Republican Congress; he went out with a Congress Democratic. Cleveland went into the White House with Congress overwhelmingly Democratic; he will go out with a Republican majority of 145 in the House of Representatives. McKinley will take the Presidential chair with a gold standard majority of about 50 in the House of Representatives. Who is there that believes he will have a gold standard majority in the House at the expiration of his term unless there is a revival in business before the next Congressional elections are held? Some of the New England States elect State officers annually and in none of them are the terms over two years. The great State of New York, an empire in itself, shortened the term of Governor from four to three years, and recently to two years, so that the people could have better opportunity to change their servants if they thought it advisable to do so. As Congress is almost as important to the people as the State government, why deprive the people of the opportunity of changing its personnel or its policies, if they so desire, every two years?

The founders of the Government made very few mistakes and the great trouble now with our Presidents and lawmakers is in departing from the rules laid down by the fathers of the Republic. They believed in a government of the people by the people for the people. If we elect a President for eight years, Senators for eight years and a House of Representatives for four years, the same arguments advanced against the frequency of elections now can be advanced against the frequency of elections then, and the next move will be to extend the terms for life.

The United States have done fairly well under the existing constitutional provisions for the election of President and Congress and we should let well enough alone. Take the tariff question out of politics by placing it in the hands of a non-partisan commission that will deal fairly with all industries, and open the mints to the coinage of silver as well as gold as they were from 1792 to 1873, and the election of a Congress every two years and of a President every four years will not disturb the business interests of the country to any appreciable extent. Treat the people fairly and there will be no occasion for distrust.

UNCLE SAM'S SOLDIERS.

The army appropriation bill as reported to the House of Representatives calls for $23,126,344, which is about $766,000 less than the estimates of the Secretary of War and $158,000 less than the appropriations for the present year. No provision is made for the Army and Navy Hospital at Hot Springs, Arkansas, as the Secretary of War recommends that it be transferred to the Interior Department to be rented. The number of patients at the hospital is no greater than the number of attendants and under the circumstances the Secretary thinks it would be cheaper to board the patients at a good hotel. The standing army of the United States is limited by law to 25,000 men. The regiments are never full and as a general rule the army does not exceed 23,500 men. The average cost, therefore, of a regular soldier to the Government is about $1,000 a year. This includes quarters, accoutrements, rations, clothing and pay, but none of the army appropriation is expended for heavy guns or fortifications. General Miles, who is now at the head of the army, recommends an increase of the regular force to 40,000 or 50,000 men, but the recommendation does not seem to meet with favor from the President nor from Congress. Public sentiment is against it, and no Congressman, who has any regard for that sentiment, will advocate a bill to increase the army.

SYMPATHY FOR THE CUBANS.

Reports from all parts of the United States show that the people are expressing the greatest sympathy for the struggling Cubans, who for two years have been battling for freedom. The treacherous manner in which the insurgent leader, Antonio Maceo, was lured to his death has aroused wide spread indignation. In many places volunteers are enrolling themselves for service against the Spaniards and funds are being raised by popular subscription for the Cubans.

Notwithstanding the strong public sentiment in favor of the recognition of Cuba as a free and independent republic, or at least according the Cubans the rights of belligerents, Congress is apathetic. A few resolutions in favor of Cuba have been introduced in both Houses, but they are invariably referred to committees which understand what pigeon holes are made for. The truth is the moneyed interests do not seem to want Cuba free from the Spanish yoke, and those interests control the majority of Congress. They have sugar plantations in Cuba and if the insurgents are recognized as belligerents they cannot sustain an action against Spain for damages to their plantations. Then the insurgents have no civil government in Cuba and that is urged as a reason for not recognizing them. The Spaniards treat them as outlaws, in fact very much as our government treated the Apaches who were on the warpath a few years ago, only with much less leniency.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Vest on Tariff and Finance.
WASHINGTON, December 16.—Vest spoke vehemently against the protective theory and declared McKinley's election has not brought prosperity. He asserted that the election was a parody on free institutions. He hoped to see an investigation, for he shared the belief expressed by Senator Chandler that the circumstances leading up to the St. Louis convention were honey-combed with fraud. He declared that prosperity never came with the addition of tariff taxes, and that a greater volume of money was the only relief. Vest paid a strong tribute to William J. Bryan, and pointed out six million votes that were cast for him. At the close of his speech a sharp tariff debate occurred between Vest, Mills, Frye and Aldrich.

Barley created a ripple of excitement in the House to-day by asking the immediate consideration of the resolution to investigate the construction of the battleship Texas. Dingley thought that the resolution ought to be considered by the Committee on Naval Affairs before being acted upon. He, therefore, objected. The resolution was referred.

The members of the House Ways and Means Committee say that a report outlining an elaborate scheme for a tariff on silver in a new bill is merely fiction. No such proposition has been considered.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

Wheat dropped $\frac{3}{4}$ cents per bushel in the Chicago exchange yesterday.

Marion Hatfield was hanged at Sneedsville, Kentucky, yesterday for the murder of Jonas Trail. Over 5,000 spectators witnessed the execution.

A terrific storm has been raging for 36 hours along the Atlantic coast from Maryland north. At Philadelphia the suburban car lines are snowbound.

The case of Father York, charged with criminally libeling George Thibault of San Francisco, whom he accused of being an A. P. A., has been continued until to-morrow.

Volunteers for the Cuban army are being mobilized at St. Louis and about the end of the week, if all plans are carried out successfully, a thousand men will leave New Orleans for Cuba.

At the Convention of the American Federation of Labor at Cincinnati the Olney arbitration bill was discussed and all labor organizations ought to use their influence to secure its passage.

The findings of the court of inquiry in the case of the battleship Texas have been made public. The Secretary of the Navy says the vessel is all right and met with no more accidents than other naval vessels.

An explosion in the Von Cramer match factory in Bavaria, Germany, resulted in the death of fifteen women and girls employed in the main building and the fatal or serious injury of several persons in an adjoining building.

The National Woolgrowers Association in session at Washington adopted a resolution in favor of an extra session of Congress as soon as practicable after the 4th of March, and asks Congress to enact the wool tariff agreed upon by the association.

The testimony given in the Sharkey-Fitzsimmons contest for $10,000 purse may result in the wholesale arrest of all concerned in the fist fight. It is believed that the fight was in violation of the laws of California and the attention of the Grand Jury has been called to the matter.

About 100 young men at Dubois, Pennsylvania, made a dummy representing Captain General Weyler, put a rope around his neck, dragged him through the streets, hanged him to a telegraph pole and then shot him down and burned him while cheered by a thousand spectators.

Members of the Ways and Means Committee say and import tax on silver would be as useless as a duty on cotton for the reason that no silver is imported into the United States. The only thing the committee can do for silver mine owners is to put a duty on Mexican lead ores of which silver is a by product.

The testimony at the trial of Charles Dow, President, and Sidney McGraw, teller of the Mercantile Bank of Denver, Colorado, in the United States District Court, shows that O. E. Miller of the Hernia Treatment Company, shows that when the bank closed in 1893, Miller had overdrawn his account $175,000, the only security for which was his personal notes.

The owners of the Three Friends, a blockade runner, acting upon the opinion of the Attorney General of the United States, loaded the steamer Commodore at Jacksonville, Florida, with 1,000 rifles, 500,000 cartridges and other munitions of war, and transferred the cargo to the Three Friends when outside the three mile limit to avoid any violation of the neutrality laws. About 300 men, all Cubans, boarded the vessel and expect to be landed in Cuba in three days. The cruiser Newark started to intercept the Three Friends but did not succeed.

The Supreme Court of the United States disposed of two criminal cases from the State of Washington, the defendant's in both the cases being worsted. They were those of Adolph Krug, a defaulting county treasurer, and Charles W. Nordstrom, convicted of murder and sentenced to death. The defendant's asserted as grounds for reversing the judgments of the State courts that criminal proceedings could not be instituted and prosecuted by information, but must be upon an indictment by a grand jury. The Supreme Court of the United States decided that the grounds were not well taken and affirmed the judgment in the Nordstrom case and dismissed the other.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

STATE CAPITAL NOTES.

Carson's Captured Firebug—Not Formidable Looking, But Dangerous. All the Same—Detectives—Migrating Comstock Mines.

CARSON CITY, December 16, 1896. Walter Kermeeen, the young man arrested Monday morning while earnestly engaged in setting the central public school house on fire, was brought into Justice Hawthorne's court this afternoon, his examination having been postponed pending the arrival of his father, who is Superintendent of the Dunderburg mine, Mono county, California. Walter is about 16 years of age, 5 feet 6 inches in height, and is rather a nice looking young man, with fair complexion, brown hair and eyes. He looks to be of a quiet, sensible disposition, although some of his most intimate friends say he is not as bright and intelligent as he looks, not keeping up in his studies at school as other big boys. Officer Ullrich, who laid for and captured him, thinks he is a pretty smart lad, or acts that way. But his trial may develop that fact later on. He watched everything and listened very composedly in court until the long handled rake with which he raised the school house window and the gummy sack with the split kindlings and bottle of coal oil in it were brought into court, when he melted into tears and covered his eyes with his handkerchief.

Pretty soon his attorney, Tremore Coffin, came in, accompanied by the father, who stepped to the side of his son, grasping him affectionately by the shoulder. Tears and sobs were the response for a moment, and the crowded assemblage being called to order, Attorney Coffin addressed the court.

He represented that Mr. Kermeeen had just arrived after a long, rough cold journey, and being completely tired out was in no condition to proceed with this preliminary examination at present. In fact they had had no time for consultation or to plan a defense, and he therefore asked that the examination be further postponed a reasonable time. It was finally agreed to defer it till 10 A. M. on Friday next.

Owing to the numerous recent incendiary attempts to destroy the school house and other property about town, a shrewd detective was imported from San Francisco who only succeeded in capturing an innocent citizen who had to be discharged, for which service the detective filed a bill for $236, payment of which is refused. Our local detective, Ullrich, got in and caught the right man without any doubt whatever.

Quite a number of the longest employed and best experienced miners of the Comstock have been passing through here of late on the railroad, having to seek employment elsewhere owing to the continued depression in mining on the old lode.

Evening before last Nick Tradeau, long time a shaft and timber foreman in the Chollar mine, left for Grass Valley to spend the holidays among relatives and friends and perhaps to permanently remain. Harry C. Johns, a first-class miner from the same mine who has worked on the old Comstock and in Austin for the last twenty-five years, left last evening for England to see his old mother and then go on to South Africa, where his brother Tom, also an old Comstocker, is foreman of a big mine. Thus they go, one after the other, but perhaps some big business strike in the famous old lode may call them all back in the sweet by and by.

ALF. LOTEN.

Brakeman Sheldon Meets Death Near Nevada's Station.

The passenger train from the west arrived an hour and a half late last night. The delay was occasioned by freight train No. 8 breaking in two near downtown's station, this side of Auburn, yesterday afternoon and a car jumping the track. Brakeman Sheldon was killed and Brakeman Lindley badly injured. It seems that the train was a heavy one and Conductor Burgess and the two brakemen were sitting on the forward end of a flat car. Suddenly the train parted just where they were sitting and Sheldon and Lindley were pitched forward, the former falling on the track and Lindley to one side of it. Nine cars passed over Sheldon and he was horribly mangled and crushed to death. Lindley received a bad cut on one of his legs and was seriously bruised, but will recover.

Sheldon was a very popular young man, and leaves a wife and three children. His remains were taken to his grief stricken family at their home in Sacramento.

This certifies that I have been using V. O. in my practice. I have never found any medical preparation in 45 years of practice that is calculated to do so much good in so wide a range of diseases and leave no after bad effects.

In Diphtheria it has proved a perfect specific in my hands, and I had rather depend on it alone in that dreadful disease than the whole popular Materia Medica with that left out.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

JEFFERSON'S MAXIMS.

The Principles Laid Down by the Author of the Declaration of Independence.

Now that the campaign is over is a good time to see how far our country may have drifted from the political principles laid down by the great Jefferson:

The legal equality of human beings. The people the only source of power.

No hereditary offices, nor order, nor title.

No taxation beyond actual public need.

No national banks nor bonds.

No costly splendor of administration.

No interference with freedom of thought or discussion.

The civil authority superior to the military.

No favored classes; no monopolies.

Free and fair elections; universal suffrage.

No public money spent without warrant of law.

No mysteries in government hidden from the public eye.

Gold and silver currency supplemented by treasury notes bottomed on taxes.

Representatives bound by the instructions of their constituents.

The Constitution of the United States is a special grant of powers limited and indefinite.

Freedom, sovereignty and independence of the respective States.

Absolute severance of church and state.

The Union a compact—not a consolidation nor a centralization.

Moderate salaries, economy and strict accountability.

No State banks of issue.

No expensive navy or diplomatic establishments.

A progressive or graduated tax laid upon wealth—the tax to grow increasingly heavy as the fortune is larger.

SWELLED THE AX HANDLE.

A Champion Rattlesnake Story from the Mississippi.

"It was right over there, by that old stump," remarked the Mississippi, as he munched his sandwich of fried pig and home-made bread, beneath the shade of a tree in the forest, "that I killed one of the biggest rattlesnakes I ever saw. It was during the month of January, and I was out camping in this very spot; there where the palm-trees are dead. Well, the weather was very cold when we arrived, and I set my nigger cook to clean away the brush, so we could make supper. Well he hadn't been at work more than a minute when he came back with his eyes as big as saucers.

"Boss," he said, "dar's a big 'im' in de brush what's alive. I dun saw it move when I chopped it. Shua, sah."

"He wouldn't rest until I investigated. When I reached the place he showed me the 'im,' and sure enough when I struck it with the ax it moved with a sinuous motion. 'Bob,' I said, 'that 'im's a snake as sure as cotton is worth six cents. Get out of the way.' I raised the ax and made a deep cut in the thing, which was about eight inches in diameter, and as I started to cut the second time there was a swish of the brush, and up came the head and neck of the biggest rattler I ever want to see. He made a dart at me, his eyes gleaming fiercely, but his neck caught in a vine. I then made another cut at his head, but missed, and the ax buried itself into that stump you see there. I dropped it then, and the infernal snake struck the handle of the implement and then fell back, writhing in the brambles, rattling as well as it could with its back broken. I started to pull the ax out of the stump, but I didn't put my hand on it, because I saw the poison of the reptile had affected the wood. It was swelling, and directly the swelling extended to the handle and the head of the ax split apart as clear as if done with a cold chisel. The snake was twelve feet long, and had twenty-six rattles."—St. Louis Republic.

THE CUBAN QUESTION.

Governor Sadler in Favor of Recognizing the Insurgents.

New York, December 15, 1896.

Sam Davis, Carson, Nev.—Please wire at once statement from Governor of your State in response to these questions:

1st. Do you favor such interference in the Cuban revolution by recognition or material aid as would promote war for independence?

2d. How many volunteers in your judgment would your State furnish for sea and land forces in case of foreign war.

New York Journal.

Governor Sadler authorized the following reply:

"I favor the independence of Cuba and think that this State should recognize its belligerency at once.

"If the reports of the killing of Macao are true, Spain has placed herself outside the pale of civilization and violated the established rules of honorable warfare. Nevada could, I think, furnish 5,000 men if called on for a foreign war."

The American Protective Tariff League is advocating a scheme to put a tariff on silver.

BREVITIES.

The best liniment for athletes is Trib's. Charles A. Jones has been given until the 23d instant in the District Court at Carson to plead to the indictment for assault with a deadly weapon.

The Knights of Pythias have selected the prizes for their coming masquerade and they can be seen at Sol Levy's, S. J. Hodgkinson's, Tassell Bros. and Sunderland's.

The Commissioners of Humboldt county will hold a special meeting on the 21st instant to make a recount of the votes for Assemblyman, and for Justice of the Peace at Winnemucca.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Twaddle of Washoe Valley visited Reno yesterday. Mr. Twaddle is feeding a lot of beef cattle this winter and thinks he may make a little profit in the business this year.

Reno Chapter, R. A. M., will meet this evening, and after the conclusion of business the member will enjoy a collation. It is expected that several visitors will be present from Virginia and Carson.

The official returns of the State election show that Washoe county stands first in the number of votes cast. Storey second, Elko third, Lincoln fourth, with Humboldt and Ormsby about even for fifth place.

Little Johnny Jones, aged three years, a son of John T. Jones, broke his left leg just below the hip. The Appeal says it is not known how the accident occurred, but it is thought his little sister threw him down.

Hon. C. H. E. Hardin, Lieutenant Governor-elect, arrived from Humboldt yesterday and went to Carson in the afternoon. His father Colonel Hardin, arrived last night with beef cattle which he is taking to the California market.

The Seed Is the Vital Thing.

Planting must be begun right, else no amount of cultivation or fertilization can prevent the crop from being a failure. The first step is the selection of the seed. Do not take any risks here. Get seeds that you can depend upon—seeds that are fresh, that have reputation behind them. The most reliable seeds grown in this country are Ferry's seeds. Wherever seeds are sown the name of D. M. Ferry & Co., of Detroit, Mich., is a guarantee of quality and freshness. The greatest care and strictest caution are exercised in the growing, selection, packing and distribution of their seeds. Not only must they be fresh, but they must be true to name.

On a par with the quality of the seeds is Ferry's Seed Annual for 1897, the most comprehensive and valuable book of the kind ever printed. Every planter, large and small, should get, read and digest this book before planting a single seed. It is free to all who address the firm as above.

WOOD WAS SCARCE.

HOW THE FREIGHTERS ON THE PLAINS DID THEIR COOKING.

A Gentleman Out Hunting Had an Opportunity to See How a Plainsman Prepared a Meal With Fuel Which He Carried
With Him in Small Chunks.

It was in the days before the railroads had been pushed out through northwest Nebraska, and supplies were freighted into the forts and trading posts in big wagons, pulled sometimes by eight or ten yoke of oxen and sometimes by one span of great mules.

It was evening when we overtook the freighter. We went into camp within 100 yards of where he stopped. It was almost at the head of the Elkhorn river, and the stream, where it flowed a few rods from our camp, was hardly more than a yard wide. The guide had told us at the start that we should strike country where we could find no wood,
and we had brought along a small oil stove, with a tin oven and a big can of ketchup. When I had watered our horses and staked them out for the night I wandered over to see the freighter. He had an enormous wagon, pulled by two giant mules. He had staked them out and was getting supper. It was the first time I had ever seen it done by a plainsman and I staid to watch him.

He was an old hand at freighting, and he knew just how many steps he would have to make where he could get no firewood. For each one he carried in his wagon, when he started out of Norfolk, a piece of 6 by 6 pine timber about eight inches long. Each piece represented the fire for one meal. He was splitting up one of them when I struck his camp.

"Evening," he said, without looking up from his work, "prospect for land?"

"No, hunting," I replied.

"Oh," he said, with an intonation that seemed to convey his feeling that he knew all about us.

He had split the piece of pine into little sticks. He gathered a handful of dry grass and wadded it up into a ball.
The ball was beat down the tall grass and cleared a little spot where he could make his fire. In the middle of it he put the ball of grass, and over it he piled eight or ten little sticks of pine.
It was ready for the match. From a box at the end of his wagon he brought out a long-handled steel frying pan, a coffee-pot and a tin can that looked as if it had once held two pounds of tomatoes (apples). Then he brought out a small tin can and set it on the ground. It held part of a supplies and served as a table. Out of it he took some flour and baked a little tin can of coffee. He got a small can of the box and ground his coffee. He was very particular about his coffee, he said to me, half apologetically.
He couldn't endure the ready ground stuff. When he had got that done, he sliced his bacon. Then he got a sheet of tin out of the wagon and stood it up behind the little pile of sticks. It helped to concentrate the heat by acting as a reflector.

He put the coffee in the pot, poured in some water from the bucketful he had brought from the river, and set it down beside the pile of sticks. Then he arranged the sticks of bacon in the frying pan and settled it on top of the pile of sticks. Then he lit his pipe. In a minute it was blazing up merrily, and the bacon was sizzling in the pan. He poured some flour into the tomato can,
dumped in a pinch of salt and some baking powder and stirred it all up vigorously with a spoon. Occasionally he stopped stirring to turn the bacon. Presently the bacon was done. He fished it out into a tin pie pan with a fork, and into the hot grease he poured the mixture of flour and other things from the tomato can. That was going to be "bull whacker's bread," or "sorghum."

As soon as he took the frying pan off the fire he put the coffee pot on, and when the thick, stiff dough was movesmoothed out in the frying pan he plopped it up in front of the fire, where the reflector would do its best work. Then out of the wagon he hauled a jug of sorghum. Three or four more little sticks of pine were deftly arranged under the coffee pot, and by that time the dough had begun to brown in the pan.
He took the pan by the end of the long handle and gave it a quick sideways twist and a little forward jerk. The mass of half baked dough slid out of the pan and flew up into the air. It turned bottom side up, and he caught it as defly as any French cook catching pancakes, and propped the unbaked side up against the fire. By the time it had baked the coffee was boiling, and the meal was ready. He drank the coffee, strong and black, out of a tin cup and used sorghum for sweetening. Butter and lard he despised. His sorghum took the place of the one and the lard grease served as substitute for the other.

When he took the coffee pot off the fire, he put on a little can of water that he had stewed and simmered and presently boiled over the embers. That was his dishwater. He had to have it hot to take the bacon grease out of his pans. And when it was all done, there were three or four of the little pine sticks still left.

I asked him if he did not want potatoes. Yes, he said, and he had them, but only when firewood was plenty. It took too long and too much wood to cook potatoes, and he couldn't do it when he had to depend on the pine stick to cook his meal.

In the morning, before we had watered the horses, he had cooked his breakfast and was off up the trail.—New

AN Unexpected Greeting
The gentle Elsie sat drearily in the gloaming in the front room.
She was very miserable, for on the previous night she had had words with her own, and now she fears her haughty Harold will not call.
She hears a step, a ring, a voice she knows, and some one speaking to the servants in the hall.
She will not wait until a light is brought, but gently calls, "Come in."
The visitor enters, and with a sigh of awful volume the fair Elsie casts herself into his arms and softly murmurs: "Oh, my darling, I am so glad you have come. I have so wanted to make it up and settle."
And he of the embrace remarked: "Well, miss, it's very nice of you, and I'm very glad, too, that you're going to settle up at last."
It was the gas collector.—Spare Moments.

With Lightning Rapidity.
"Wonderful eye that boy of mine's got," said the proud father.
"That so?" mechanically replied the man who was trying to get away.
"You never saw such a sense of proportion," cried the proud father. "But that boy the cake dish, and he'll spot the biggest piece on it every time."
Rockland (Me.) Tribune.

A Spot.
Florence's father's initials are A. B. S., and, while Florence knows her letters, she is not yet able to spell. The other day she came running to her mother.
"Oh, mamma," she exclaimed, "I can spell umbrella."
"But I can," she insisted.
"I hardly think so," said her mother.
"Yes, but it does," she urged. "I saw it on papa's umbrella, and I'd like to know why it would be there if it spelled something else."—Detroit Free Press

The Safety Point in Floors.
Probably less is known by architects and structural engineers regarding the safety of floors than of any other portion of a building. The relative cost of the steel beams in a floor, as compared with the terra cotta or other filling, has caused some builders to go to an extreme in increasing the spans between beams, thus greatly increasing the risk of destruction by fire, even though there may be ample strength in the absence of fire.—Engineering News.

Builted Better Than He Knew.
Mrs. Jackson—I thought you told me you trimmed that hat yourself. I'm sure it is just as stylish as if it had been done by a high priced milliner.
Mrs. Johnson (complacently)—Yes, I think it has a stylish look myself. You see, my husband sat down on it accidentally after I had got done and gave it exactly the right twist.—Boston Courier

Couldn't Say.
